Marines.

Thank you for electing me Commandant for another year. I was hoping that some new blood would want to move into the slot, but it didn't work out that way. Maybe next year! Anyway, I really do like doing the job and I will do my best not to let you down. I want us to start REALLY trying to bring in new members this year. Our Detachment is a very strong Detachment in that we have anywhere from 35 to 50 percent of our membership at each meeting and event. If we can add some members and keep this record, we will have a very diverse group from which to pick next year's officers. Not to mention how good we will look in parades.

Speaking of parades, I was at the Memorial Day Parade Meeting on Wednesday night. The meeting got started at about 7:30 p.m. and lasted about an hour. The Mayor had all of last year's lists and marching order, so we saved some time there. Our Detachment will be right behind the Civil War group. There will be a short stop at the Civil War Monument during the parade and then we will be at War Memorial Field to raise the colors at 8:45. After we are done there, we will rejoin our float and move into position for the parade. For the past few years, we have been having a picnic after the parade. I would like to know what the membership thinks about continuing this practice. Please let me hear from you at the April Meeting. Full details on the parade will be discussed at the meeting. Please try to be there.

The April Meeting is our installation of officers. The Southeast Division Vice Commandant Dan Doty is coming to perform the installation. If you are planning to attend, which all of our members should, please wear a uniform, if you have one. If you don't, just bring your red cover. This meeting will be full of information for you. We will not only be discussing the parade details, but we will be finalizing plans for the "A-Day" parking fund raiser. It is VERY IMPORTANT that we have the help of every member for this! It is the biggest fund raiser we do. If the weather is good, we can make about $3,000 or more. Please be sure to get your name on the "sign up" sheet so you can be part of this project. WE NEED YOU! I will be attending the 40th Anniversary Banquet that All Divisions Detachment is holding on Mar. 26; and, the Department Staff Meeting on Mar. 27. I will have a full report on both at the April Meeting. I look forward to seeing a full house on the second Wednesday of April--don't let me down, Marines!

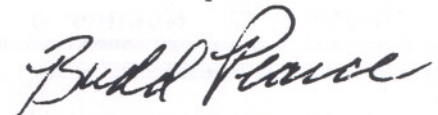

The next highway clean-up will be on Saturday, Apr. 17. We will meet for breakfast at Lu's Place (Edison-Furlong Rd. & Rt. 263) at 8 a.m. If you haven't been out with us yet, don't let that stop you. We have a good breakfast and a fun

1stMarDiv Association Holding Philly Reunion

The 1st Marine Division Association will hold its 52nd Annual Reunion at the Wyndham Franklin Plaza Hotel, 17th & Race Sts., in Philadelphia, Aug. 4-8. The Liberty Bell Chapter is hosting the event and needs help Aug. 2-8, handing out paperwork, answering questions, etc. All those Marines coming from other parts of the country are journeying to Philly to have a good time. Let's make it easy for them. Anyone who has the time and would like to help, please call Mike Waldron at (215) 672-7095 after 6 p.m.

time picking up litter along Rt. 313. I hope we are lucky and have a nice day but, if not, the rain date will be Saturday May 4. We cannot have the rain date on Apr. 24 because we will be at the "A-Day" parking fund raiser, won't we? This is the first clean-up of the year, so it would be good if we could get a large number of members to turn out for this one. I hope to see you there!

DoD Issuing 'Cold War Certificates'

WASHINGTON--The Army is managing a Department of Defense program that recognizes service members and government civilian employees for their service during the Cold War.

Qualified military and civilian personnel can now access the Internet address <http://sdcw.army.mil/coldwar> to obtain information on how to receive a Cold War Recognition Certificate signed by Secretary of Defense William S. Cohen, according to Army Major Dan Gibson, chief of military awards branch, The Adjutant General Directorate.

The Internet address will provide applicants with information on how to apply for the Cold War Certificate," Gibson said. "Applications will appear on the website April 5. The applications will collect individual/personal data and instruct applicants on which documentation will be needed."

Gibson cautions applicants not to send original required documents, such as DD Forms 214 (Certificate of Release/Discharge from Military Service). Photocopies only should be forwarded, he added, as any documents sent will not be returned.

The Department of the Army is designated as the executive agent for implementation and award of the CWRC. The Personnel Service Support Division, The Adjutant General Directorate, Army Personnel Command, Alexandria, VA, is responsible for the program.

The Certificate will be provided to all members of the Armed Forces and qualified Federal government employees who faithfully served the United States during the Cold War era, from Sept. 2, 1945, to Dec. 26, 1991.

U. S. Marines Are Getting Their Few Good Men & Women

WASHINGTON--The Marine Corps is beating the other services in recruiting and keeping young warriors because of its reliance on traditional values.

"We're selling something in this country right now that's in short supply. That's patriotism, professionalism and dedication to country," said retired LtGen. Charles Cooper, who oversaw Corps recruiting in the early 1980s.

First Lt. Jeff Sammons, a spokesman for Marine Recruiting Command, added, "The kids are committing to the Marine Corps because the kids are getting this personal development.

"...The Marine Corps is the Cadillac of the military services. We require more of them."

The Corps' well-traveled pitch for "a few good men" continues to connect with young people while the other services scramble to meet induction targets. The service has met or exceeded those goals for 43 straight months.

In contrast, the Army and Navy fell short last fiscal year, resorting to accepting more non-high school graduates. The Air Force also missed its target the past three months. It has started buying national TV ads for the first time in its history.

Said Robert Maginnis, a military analyst at the Family Research Council, "It's the Marine Corps that has essentially been unscathed over the years by all these sex scandals.

"People who are serious about a career in the Armed Forces, there's only one choice today and that is the U. S. Marine Corps."

The Marines also can boast better retention numbers.

A recent General Accounting Office report on first-term enlistees showed the Corps attrition rate dropped to 33 percent since 1993, while the Navy's, Army's and Air Force's rose. One simple answer for the better enlistment is size.

The Corps, the smallest service with 174,000 troops, needs fewer 17-to-24-year-olds to sign up than does the Army's 480,000-soldier force.

But military experts see a more complex reason.

At a time when President Clinton's sexual misconduct is causing a reexamination of the country's morals, the Corps' motto, "Semper Fidelis," or "Always Faithful," is a welcome testament to faithfulness.

Gen. Charles Krulak, Marine Commandant, has made moral behavior an essential Marine attribute. He objected when Defense Department civilians last year toyed with the idea of relaxing adultery laws.

The Corps openly opposed Mr. Clinton's failed bid in 1993 to allow open homosexuality in the military. And, experts say, parents long for an institution that teaches discipline and dedication.

Said retired Army Col. Terry Crews, a former Cobra helicopter pilot, "There are a lot of kids out there that have not had the discipline in their lives because...their mother and father (are) working and (they have) a liberal atmosphere at school. They want some structure in their lives. They join the Marine Corps and get some very strong values; the sense of being part of an elite organization."

Mr. Maginnis, a retired Army Lieutenant Colonel, believes the Corps' holdout as the only service to train men and women recruits separately helps attract recruits.

"They've allowed women to demonstrate what they can do in a stressful environment without compromising what common sense says about differences in the sexes," he said.

"The Marine Corps is the only service to recognize that men and women are different and has managed throughout the years not to allow the differences to hurt overall readiness."

First Lt. Sammons, a former recruiter, said the Corps places a premium on the system itself. Recruiters are handpicked and meticulously trained.

Gen. Krulak personally approves the commander of each of 48 recruiting stations. Once inside a recruiting office, young men and women are sold on being a Marine first. He said recruiters don't dangle college tuition and other benefits until the person agrees to join.

"They want to be held to an accountable standard and one that will challenge them," Lt. Sammons said.

Mr. Clinton and Senate Republicans have both proposed large pay and benefit packages to help entice more enlistees and retain personnel.

But a Senate Budget Committee staff report notes that Marines have met quotas relying on the current pay scale. Said the report, "In 1998 the retention of both first-and-second-term enlistees and of career personnel was on the increase in the Marines.

"...Is it possible that factors other than money help to explain the hemorrhage of military personnel?"

One study suggested that those other factors were loss of job satisfaction, micromanagement from senior officers and a general lack of confidence in leadership."
