'A VETERAN DIED TODAY'

He was getting old and paunchy
and his hair was falling out,
and he sat around the Legion,
telling stories of the past.
Of a war that he had fought in and the deeds that he had done.
In his exploits with his buddies:
they were heroes, everyone.

And 'tho sometimes, to his neighbors,
his tales became a joke,
all his buddies listened,
they knew whereof he spoke.
But we'll hear his tales no longer,
for ol' Bob has passed away,
and the world's a little poorer,
for a VETERAN died today.

When politicians leave this earth,
their bodies lie in state,
while thousands note their passing and proclaim that they were great.

Papers tell of their life stories,
from the time that they were young,
but the passing of a VETERAN goes unnoticed, and unsung.

Is the greatest contribution,
to the welfare of our land,
some jerk who breaks his promise
and cons his fellow man?

Or the ordinary fellow,
who in times of war and strife,
goes off to serve his country
and offers up his life?

The politician's stipend and
the style in which he lives,
are sometimes disproportionate,
to the service he gives.

While the ordinary VETERAN,
who offered up his all,
is paid off with a medal
and perhaps a pension, small.

It's so easy to forget them,
for it is so long ago,
that our Bobs & Jims & Johnnys,
went to battle, but we know.

It was not the politicians,
with their compromise and ploys,
who won for us the freedom
that our country now enjoys.

Should you find yourself in danger,
with your enemies at hand,
would you really want some cop-out,
with his ever-waffling stand?
Or would you want a VETERAN who has sworn to defend,
his home, his kin, and country,
and would fight until the end?

He was just a common VETERAN,
and his ranks are growing thin,
but his presence should remind us,
we may need his likes again.
For when countries are in conflict,
then we find the military's part,
is to clean up all the troubles
that the politicians start.

If we cannot do him honor,
while he's here to hear the praise,
then at least let's give him homage,
at the ending of his days.
Perhaps just a simple headline
in the paper that might say:

"OUR COUNTRY IS IN MOURNING, FOR A VETERAN DIED TODAY."

COMMANDANT'S COLUMN

Marines,

It has been a month now since my ascendancy to the throne and not one bad thing has happened. Perhaps its the calm before the storm.

We had a great A-Day fund raiser at DelVal parking cars on Saturday and Sunday. Saturday was a beautiful day and we cashed in with our big lot and the smaller lot was full most of the time as well. Sunday started off well and we had high expectations of another busy day, however, it was not meant to be as around noon the sky darkened and it poured buckets for the remainder of the day. The cars stopped coming and we decided to call it a day. The rain was heavy at times, cold, and few of us were prepared as we were all soaked but no one complained. It wasn't worth getting sick. After all, we don't have the Navy bugging us to keep our shot cards up to date. Thanks to all of you for answering the call. We did quite well.

Our regular meeting this month was held at NARTB, Willow Grove, PA. It was hosted by the Liberty Young Marines Unit. We were really there for them as our meeting was very abbreviated and we only had three elected officers in attendance. We did manage to sneak in a little business before adjournment.

I was quite impressed with the Young Marines as a whole. It's obvious the fine job being done by Sgt. Harold Heald and his staff to teach these young people the traditions and values of our beloved Marine Corps. I was honored to have been invited to go into the ranks, inspect, and greet each member individually. If anyone in attendance had a camera with them taking pictures of this event, I would appreciate a photo or two.

Just a reminder, Memorial Day is just a few days away and we need to get the float up and running and decorated. As usual it won't get done by itself and we need as many able bodied Marines that are willing to pitch in for the cause. For details and information concerning the parade call either myself at 215-943-0133 or PC Budd Pearce at 215-343-5609. Lets have a good showing on Memorial Day and most important, remember that it's a time to reflect, remember, and honor our fallen brethren.

Semper Fidelis

An American in Paris

An American is having breakfast in Paris one morning (coffee, croissants, bread, butter & jam) when a Frenchman, chewing gum, sits down next to him.

The American ignores the Frenchman who, nevertheless, starts a conversation.

Frenchman: "You American folk eat the whole bread?"

American (in a bad mood): "Of course."

French: (after blowing a huge bubble) "We don't. In France, we only eat what's inside. The crusts we collect in a container, recycle it, transform them into croissants and sell them to the States."

The Frenchman has a smirk on his face. The American listens in silence.

The Frenchman persists: "Do you eat jelly with the bread?"

American: "Of course."

Frenchman: (cracking his gum between his teeth and chuckling). "We don't. In France we eat fresh fruit for breakfast, then we put all the peels, seeds, and leftovers in containers, recycle them, transform them into jam and sell the jam to the States."

The American then asks: "Do you have sex in France?"

Frenchman: "Why of course we do," he says with a big smirk.

American: "And what do you do with the condoms once you've used them?"

Frenchman: "We throw them away, of course."

American: "We don't. In America, we put them in a container, recycle them, melt them down into chewing gum and sell them to the French."

A MARINE NAMED 'ARCHIE'

Note: This is a personal recollection by Richard W. Williams, an enlisted Marine Corps infantryman who served in Vietnam in 1969, posted in the 1st Marine Division site at Grunts.net, a military history website. It has been slightly edited for grammar.

I was a grunt in India Company 3/5 in 1969. But this is not war story. This is a story about the Espirit de Corps of the 1st Marine Division.

I lived in Boca Raton, Florida. Prior to joining the Marines in 1968, I learned that there was a Marine who lived close by my home. I knocked on his door and his wife answered. I merely said I was considering joining the Marines and I understood her husband was a former Marine. I was hoping he'd let me ask him a few questions about what to expect. As any good Marine's wife she let me in and introduced me to her husband, "Archie."

Archie was quite old. However, he sat in his winged-back chair with a quiet repose. In spite of his failing eyesight, he fixed me with a steady gaze, politely smiled and simply said, "Welcome aboard." We talked the afternoon away.

Archie patiently answered my questions about the Marine Corps, Parris Island and careers in the Corps. All he related to me about his exploits in the Marines was that he loved the Corps and every minute he had served in it. As the late afternoon sun dipped on the horizon, I bid him farewell and promised I would return to see him after I finished Boot Camp.

I kept my promise and visited him nearly every day I was back from Parris Island. He and his wife were gracious hosts. As I sat and learned from Archie, his wife would serve us brandy in the afternoon to go with the cigar Archie enjoyed only once a day. I felt extremely bonded with Archie for sharing his ritual with me.

As my leave drew to a close and I prepared to go to Vietnam, Archie's and my conversations drew deadly serious. He gave me tip after tip on how to fight and even how to win campaigns. As an enlisted snuffie, I didn't think the High Command would be interested in my opinions on running a campaign but I listened in utter fascination to Archie's knowledge.

He told me what to expect in war and what not to fear. After his brandy one evening he said, "Don't worry if you are ready for the task of war. Because no sane man is ever ready. There is only one thing that makes a good warrior and that is a man who cares for his fellow man. That is why the Marines do so well at making war. We respect each other. We'd rather die than to let down our comrades. You see, there are many reasons a young man marches off to war - patriotism, duty, honor, adventure; but only one reason he actually fights once he is in a war. He fights for the men next to him. Marines don't endure the hell of combat for any lofty principles.

Marines fight because each Marine acknowledges the loftiest principle of all: he acknowledges and accepts the responsibility of being his brother's keeper. That's why you will fight. You are a Marine and you will protect your unit at all cost."

Archie asked me to write and keep him abreast to what I experienced in Vietnam. He gave me his address. I thanked him and promised I would write as soon as I landed and found out what my FPO address would be. Without looking at it, I folded the paper and put his address in my wallet and marched off to war.

Naturally, I lost his address. However, I sent a letter to him through my father letting him know I landed and providing him with my FPO. I had been in Vietnam less than a month when I got a response from Archie. He simply asked me to tell him how we were conducting the war, what were my impressions.

The name on the return address was General Archer A. Vandegrift, USMC (Ret.).

My friend, Archie, was the former CO of the 1st Marine Division ("Guadalcanal General"). He had won the Medal of Honor [chris - pls link to 031224 MoH Vandegrift] at Guadalcanal and later became Commandant of the Marine Corps. At PI, we had learned all about General Vandegrift. But being as dumb as a box of rocks, I never really remembered "Archie's" last name until his letter arrived. I just remembered it was "Van" something.

I sat down in the sweaty jungle rot and stench and began what would be a long series of letters from one snuffie to the ex-Commandant and the most famous CO of my Marine Division. I started it out simply, Dear General Vandegrift, Vietnam is like a large island where the enemy has kept a seaway open. The enemy also has a secret weapon. The seaway is the Ho Chi Minh trail. The secret weapon is their ability to use resupply themselves using technologies that existed since the stone age. We ignore the seaway, leaving it open and try to use high technology to cause collateral damage to their stone-age production capacity.

It's like dropping firecrackers on ants. So the enemy will continually be resupplied. And we will continually be resupplied. That means this fight will go on until one side or the other tires of it. On the ground, your Marines are just that, Marines. We are doing just what you predicted, fighting for the guy next to us. Other than that, it don't mean nothing but, what does mean something is that for all those months you never let on who you were. It was just two Marines, no rank. That's why I serve, because of men like you who have made the Marine Corps something worthy to fight for.

Semper Fidelis

The general wrote back and agreed that an enemy must be denied resupply.

Whatever You Say, Dear

I had 12 bottles of whiskey in my cellar and my wife told me to empty the contents of each and every bottle down the sink--or else!

So, I said I would proceed with the unpleasant task.

I withdrew the cork from the first bottle and poured the contents down the sink, with the exception of one glass, which I drank. I extracted the cork from the second bottle and did likewise with the exception of one glass, which I drank.

I then withdrew the cork from the third bottle and poured the whiskey down the sink, with the exception of one glass, which I drank.

I pulled the cork from the fourth sink and poured the bottle down the glass, which I drank.

I pulled the bottle from the cork of the next and drank one sink out of it and threw the rest down the glass.

I pulled the sink out of the next glass, bottled the drink and drank the pour.

When I had everything emptied, I steadied the house with one hand, counted the bottles and corks, glasses and sinks with the other which were 29 and, as the house came by, I counted them again, and finally had all the houses and bottles and corks, glasses and sinks counted, except one house and one bottle, which I drank.

A war of attrition is less costly to a Third World country than it is to a high-tech country. He said that the bombing and blockading of Haiphong Harbor and an end run up the Ho Chi Mihn trail coupled with a staggered attack due north would end this war in a few months. But, without a Pearl Harbor, the American people don't have a heart for war. That was America's greatest strength, he said.

We only like to fight when we are mad. And, when we are mad we fight like no other civilization in the history of the world.

This story isn't about famous people I have known. I was then and am now nobody, just a simple grunt. But the most famous CO of the 1st Marine Division would sit down and talk to a lowly private just shows what the Marine Corps is made of.

It shows that the Corps' motto, Semper Fidelis, is more than mere words. It is a way of life.
